Pastor's Page

As a Community of Faith, we share life together. We share beginnings. And we share endings, including times of death. Sometimes we do not know what to do when someone in the congregation dies. While there are no obligations, consider what you might do when someone in the church dies. Begin with prayer, then follow where that leads.

"I sit down and write someone in the family a note, thinking about the interactions I had with their loved one. I have always felt it important for the family to know that their loved one made an impression on others."

"I am a cookie-maker. When someone dies I usually begin baking. Guests and visitors like to have a cookie while they stop by to pay their respects to the family. Plus, when I am baking and mixing all the ingredients, I am thinking about all the things that came together to make that person special."

"I was taught by my parents to always attend the funeral or visitation, whether I knew the person well or not. It's a way of saying that we are connected in Christ. It feels respectful of that person's life to be a witness to the celebration of eternal life. Sometimes, when I haven't known the person very well, I hear about their life and I wish I would have been able to know them better before they died."

"I make prayer-shawls. I think about the person, and a scripture comes to mind which I write down and keep in front of me. I choose the colors and pattern carefully so that they reflect what I know and admire about the person. And then, I pray and I knit. They happen at the same time. As the blanket grows it reminds me that we are covered in prayer and warmed by the love of others."

"I always think that bereaved families are overwhelmed the days after a death. There is so much to do, so many questions to answer, so many people to see. Often they do not rest and have not eaten well, and are tired. So, when a person dies I place three notes on my calendar, to call upon them in one week, one month, and two months later. That might mean I write a note or stop by or give them a call. I have found that people still need to tell their story after the busyness of the funeral is over."

"I try to avoid cliches. I try not to say, 'God never gives you more than you can handle.' Or that 'God must have needed your little one in heaven.' I just sit with my friend. And sometimes I'll say, 'Tell me again what happened that day...'"

The Prayers of Our Hearts

Ross & Erin Vanderlaan - Praise! Our friends got placement of their son on 6/1/18. We are so thankful their family has grown. Please keep Kay and Ray in thought and prayer for the finalization to go smoothly.

David Waugh & Tena Podein - Prayers for dear Kathy and her family. Lord bring them peace.

Val Rienks - Prayers for Pennie Jackson. She suffered a stroke as a result of a blood clot on Memorial day. She is out of ICU.

Barb Schondelmayer - The Master Arts Theatre actors were superb and awesome. Very inspiring.

Delores Sanford - Our service was wonderful. Thank you Master Arts.

Kathy Challa - I only have a short time they say.

Sallie McLean - Please pray for the staff that left Metron. I hope they keep in touch with me. I will miss them.

Freddi Angus - Master Arts Theatre is enlightening and wonderful.

Kathy DenHollander - Last week was not great. My brother with pneumonia had an x-ray that showed no improvement so they started him on new meds. He then went to the ER with what he thought was a stroke. It turned out to be a seizure. We are waiting on the results of the latest chest x-rays. My sister had a successful surgery but then developed a reaction to a medication and ended up in the ICU for 4 days.

Summer Women's Book Study

Join women from our church and community as we study the book Uninvited by Lysa Terkeurst. The book and video series chronicle Terkeurst's personal experiences of rejection. The book examines the roots of rejection and its ability "to poison relationships from the inside out, including her relationship with God. Uninvited reminds us of a love (God's love) that can never be diminished, tarnished, shaken, or taken—a love that does not reject or uninvite.
